Music: Koji Ueno (2-25)

How important is music to dramatic animation?

Characters and worlds drawn by a pencil, things where only the surface is visible to the eye, are truly given depth and emotion by music; it becomes the vital breath that infuses a life which can't be seen.

Whenever I start a new production meeting the composer is probably the most nerve-racking thing about it. That's because what you are asking of them isn't completely clear even to the creators, it's the most important part of the show but at the same time it's very hard to define, the emotional tone of the story.

At any rate, I think Mr. Ueno's song "The Children of Béfort" is spectacular.

It gives this story about reincarnated children a great emotional anchor and becomes a strong foundation for the series.

I'm reminded again of how grateful I am, as the original creator and as the director of the series, to have had the opportunity to use this much atmospheric music in a television animation. And I think "Helga's Song," "Enma," "The End," "Zone (unreleased piece)," and the rest are more than just background music for the show, they are finished, beautiful musical compositions.

All that's left is to make the series itself as wonderful as this music.

Opening Theme

Voyage (TV Version)/inori

sou itooshisa to kizuna wo daita hatenaku umi ni ukabu chiisa na hoshi de

Yes, I embraced tenderness and devotion, On this small planet floating in unending space anata no nukumori wo soba ni kanjiru toki inochi no omosa to hakanasa wo shiru no

When I feel your warmth next to me, I understand the burden and the transience of life

mayoinageku yoru mo namida no asa mo ashita wo shinjiru kara koeteyukeru no

Nights of sorrowful wandering and tearful mornings, I can make it threw because I believe in tomorrow yume no tsuzuki he

Continuing the dream

Ending Theme

Mizu no madoromi [Water's Rest] (Russian TV Version)/ORIGA

Глубоко-глубоко хрусталём сияет морское дно Песней колыбельной из далёких снов Сладкий ветер карамели детства пролетел под радугой
Ласковой рукою начертил горизонт

Заревом огня поёт мотив любви Обливая мир, струится высотой Это для неё сияние зари Всё, что в мире есть, она заполняет собой
